Spiritual Notes:

The feast of the Epiphany reminds us that Christ came to save all people. The magi represent those who come to know God through nature. The Second Vatican Council's Dogmatic Constitution of Divine Revelation teaches that God was first made known in created realities. The magi read the sky and are led to find the light of the world. Herod's advisors turn to the Scripture and learn that the Messiah is to be born in Bethlehem of Judea. But Herod's response is not "to do him homage" like the magi; he seeks to destroy the child. While Herod is greatly troubled by the birth of the child, the magi are overjoyed. Our response to God's revelation is key to our salvation. Today's text from Isaiah is often interpreted through the lens of the story of the magi. Writing five centuries before Christ's birth, our prophet, Third Isaiah, envisions a time when Zion, God's mountain, will be a place where the nations of the world will encounter the Lord. "Your light has come" he says to his people, "the glory of the Lord shines upon you." Writing some years after the exile, our prophet has a strong sense of universalism: God's desire to save all people. We are called to walk in God's light. Paul writes to the Ephesians of God's mystery, which "was made known to me by revelation." This is a new message, "not made known to human beings in other generations" but now made known "by the Spirit." In Christ, this mystery has been revealed: "the Gentiles are co-heirs....in the promise of Christ Jesus." Christ came for all. It is up to us to accept or reject him.

For reflection: What is my attitude toward those who seek God in places other than the church? How can I better carry Christ's light to the world in this new calendar year?

Notas Espirituales:

La fiesta de la Epifanía del Señor nos recuerda que Cristo vino para salvar a todas las personas. Los magos representan a los que vienen a conocer a Dios a través de la naturaleza. La constitución dogmática del Concilio Vaticano II sobre la Divina Revelación enseña que Dios se hizo por primera vez conocido "en la realidad creada." Los magos leen el cielo y los ha llevado a encontrar la luz del mundo. Asesores de Herodes recurren a las Escrituras y se enteran de que el Mesías va a nacer "en Belén de Judea." Pero la respuesta de Herodes no es "a rendirle homenaje" igual que los magos; el busca destruir al niño. Mientras Herodes "enormemente preocupado" por el nacimiento del niño, los magos se "alegran." Nuestra respuesta a la revelación de Dios es la clave para nuestra salvación.

El texto de hoy de Isaías es a menudo interpretado a través del lente de la historia de los Reyes Magos. Escribiendo cinco siglos antes del nacimiento de Cristo, nuestro profeta, Tercer Isaías, prevé un tiempo en Sion, el monte de Dios, será el lugar en el que las naciones del mundo se encontrarán con el Señor. "Ha llegado tu luz," dice a su pueblo: "la gloria del Señor brilla sobre ti." Escribiendo algunos años después del exilio, nuestro profeta tiene un fuerte sentido de universalidad: Dios quiere salvar a la humanidad. Estamos llamados a caminar en la luz de Dios.

Pablo escribe a los Efesios el misterio de Dios, que "se me dio a conocer por revelación." Este es un mensaje nuevo, "no se ha dado a conocer a los seres humanos en otras generaciones," pero ahora se ha dado a conocer "por el Espíritu. En Cristo este misterio ha sido revelado: "los gentiles son coherederos... en la promesa de Cristo Jesús." Cristo viene para todos. Depende de nosotros aceptarlo o rechazarlo.

Para la reflexión: ¿Cuál es mi actitud hacia aquellos que buscan a Dios en lugares distintos de la iglesia? ¿Cómo puedo llevar mejor la luz de Cristo al mundo en este nuevo año?
