Spiritual Notes:

In Isaiah, the Lord invites the hungry and the thirsty to eat and drink, even "you who have no money." God is inviting them to a banquet anticipating the messianic banquet at the end of time. This concern for the people is an aspect of the everlasting covenant God made with David. This covenant extends God's love and mercy to all peoples. Isaiah calls his people to be the means through which others will come to share in the covenant of God's blessings. Paul tells the Romans that nothing will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus. Because of this he is able to experience all sorts of trials, including imprisonment, knowing that in all the things we conquer through him who loved us. Even the spiritual powers, angels and principalities, are powerless over us because God is with us. The story of the multiplication of loaves, found in all four Gospels, foreshadows the Eucharist. Matthew tells us that Jesus withdrew in a boat to a deserted place, but even then he cannot avoid the crowds. This undefined deserted place is reminiscent of the wilderness in Exodus, where Moses and the people received the gift of manna. The disciples concern for the crowd's hunger is illustrated in their request that Jesus dismiss the crowds so they can go, and buy food. But Jesus has other ideas: give them some food yourselves. He intends to involve them in the miraculous feeding of the crowd. And so after blessing and breaking the loaves and fish, he gives them to the disciples, who in turn gave them to the crowds. This is a reminder that sometimes God's work requires our hands and feet to reach others.

For reflection: How is God calling me to share in the work of feeding those who hunger for God's presence? How can I use my hands and feet to advance God's work in the world?

Notas Espirituales:

En Isaías, el Señor invita a los hambrientos y los sedientos a comer y beber, incluso "los que no tienen dinero." Dios los invita a un banquete, anticipando el banquete mesiánico en el fin de los tiempos. Esta preocupación por las personas es un aspecto de la "alianza eterna" Dios hizo con David. Este pacto se extiende el amor y la misericordia de Dios a todos los pueblos. Isaías llama a su pueblo a ser el medio a través del cual otros vendrán a compartir en el pacto de las bendiciones de Dios.

Pablo les dice a los romanos que nada "podrá separarnos /del amor de Dios en Cristo Jesús." Debido a esto es capaz de experimentar todo tipo de pruebas, incluida la cárcel, a sabiendas de que "en todas estas cosas vencemos... /por medio de aquel que nos amó." Incluso los poderes espirituales - ángeles, principados, - no tienen poder sobre nosotros porque Dios está con nosotros.

El relato de la multiplicación de los panes, que se encuentran en los cuatro Evangelios, anuncia la Eucaristía. Mateo nos dice que Jesús "se retiró en una barca a un lugar desierto," pero aún así no puede evitar las multitudes. Este lugar solitario definido recuerda el desierto en el Éxodo, cuando Moisés y el pueblo recibió el don del maná. La preocupación de los discípulos por el hambre de la multitud se ilustra en su pedido de que Jesús "Despide a la gente para que puedan ir... /y comprar comida." Pero Jesús tiene otra idea: "denles de comer ustedes mismos." Su intención es involucrarlos en la milagrosa alimentación de la multitud. Y así, después de bendecir y romper los panes y los peces, les da a los discípulos "que a su vez les dieron a las multitudes." Este es un recordatorio de que a veces la Obra de Dios requiere de nuestros pies y manos para alcanzar a otros.

Para la reflexión: ¿Cómo es que Dios me llama a participar en la obra de alimentar a los que tienen hambre de la presencia de Dios? ¿Cómo puedo usar mis manos y los pies para hacer avanzar la obra de Dios en el mundo?

Por favor, recuerde en su oración, a todos los enfermos, al salir de casa, y la recuperación de nuestra parroquia. Además, orar por aquellos que sufren de condiciones físicas o mentales.
